The following series of descriptions cover photographs made [REDACTED] of Eisenhuettenkombinat Ost (EKO) facilities in Fuerstenberg/Oder. The photographs are on file at CIA library under reference number [REDACTED]
